TO: Demonstration of Currency Student
FROM: Dean, School of Business and Management
SUBJECT: Demonstration of Currency

Because of rapid changes occurring in the business environment today, it is important for today’s college graduate to maintain current knowledge in their field of study. Therefore, it may be necessary for students to demonstrate currency within the degree in order to transfer credits previously earned at other regionally accredited colleges and universities or through other transfer sources.

Demonstration of Currency (DOC) is determined after a student completes a DOC application. The application and any corresponding documentation is reviewed to determine if the student has successfully demonstrated current knowledge of the subject area content of the courses in question. This determination is based on validation of current trainings, certifications, licenses, examinations, advanced related courses or other contemporary experiences. A phone conference may take place between the application reviewer and the student to clarify any questions that may arise during the review process. The DOC review will determine if currency has or has not been met.

For the BSBA degree, the Business Core includes a capstone course called "Strategic Management". Strategic Management integrates course content across the core business subject areas and validates currency of all Core courses. Therefore, Strategic Management must be completed no more than 5 years from the most current date of application to the University. If the course is older than 5 years, students are required to demonstrate currency or re-take the course.

Within the BSBA Area of Study, up to 50 percent of the courses in the area of study may be older than 7 years from the most current date of application to the University and still be utilized toward the area of study. Any additional older credits applicable to the area of study would have to undergo currency review before being placed in this area of the degree.
